

Coaching Services

Upper level managers make many difficult decisions and often do not know who they can fully trust to think through solutions.

As a coach, I can serve as your “sounding board” and help you minimize miscues. I am a curious, well-organized, systematic, disciplined thinker willing to both listen and ask difficult questions, and to explore issues from multiple perspectives.

My twenty years of experience teaching business ethics and conducting ethics workshops has sensitized me to the complexity of business and managerial problems that arise.

I am available for short consultations or 24/7 on a long-term or short-term basis.
